FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Musician merges Music and the Internet to create Innovative Program for children.

SAN DIEGO, CA. - May 25- With his newest release, "Let's Go To Africa", San Diego-Based musician Randy Chiurazzi gives kids an interactive series of songs about the Great Continent of Africa.

"I developed these Interactive Learning Songs to be irresistibly fun to dance to. At the www.goshowsongs.com web site, kids will find a virtual toy box full of pictures and lyrics that go with the songs." It's all true, there's even a web page devoted to making instruments to play along with. Parents and teachers will find the fact-packed music to be educationally sound. Mr. Chiurazzi has a degree in education and has put it to good use in this work, "The songs are arranged in the style of a lesson plan: The first song mentions all of the subjects (insects of Africa, Trees of Africa, etc.). It is followed by songs about each subject." The best fact about "Let's Go To Africa" is the bright, danceable tunes. They'll never know they are learning.

Learning couldn't be more fun!
